

ICYMI: Another Conservative Voice Urges The President To Defend Open Skies

"A victory in ending Open Skies agreements with two small countries in the Gulf...could presage a snowball effect that rolls back decades of progress in air travel. That would be bad for foreign relations, air travels, international trade, and yes even the airlines themselves who have picked this fight."

— Jared Whitley, *The Daily Caller

12/15/17

Whitley has served as Press Secretary for Senator Orrin Hatch and as an Associate Director in the White House under President George W. Bush.